Population Estimates for Tennessee Cities

TENNESSEE

Department of Labor and Workforce Development

The 2010 Tennessee Census population was 6,346,105. This number represents an actual count of the state population. According to estimates published by the United States Census Bureau, the 2013 population of Tennessee was 6,495,978, up 149,873 (2.4 percent) from the 2010 Census.

The Population Division of the Census Bureau releases estimates of state, county, MSA, and city populations each July 1. The estimation methodology has remained unchanged for over two decades.

The most recent decennial census data from April 1, 2010, were used. The updated population estimates include births, deaths, internal migration, and international migration that have occurred from the census date to the date of the population estimate. For the net migration component, the bureau relies on the annual extract of tax returns to develop net migration rates for the population under age 65 for each county. Due to space limitations, the table on the following page includes only the Census 2010 population as well as the 2012 and 2013 population estimates (as of July 1).

Actual Population

In 2013, there were 185 incorporated cities in Tennessee. Of that group, 136 had a population greater than 1,500. These are shown on the next page. The largest city in Tennessee, in 2013, was Memphis with a population of 653,450. The smallest was Medon city, in Madison County, with a population of 177.

The cities with the largest increases in population from 2010 until 2013 were Nashville-Davidson County (up 33,242), Clarksville city (up 9,428), Murfreesboro city (up 8,289), Memphis city (up 6,561), and Franklin city (up 6,399). These five cities had a total population in 2013 of 1,616,201 which is 24.9 percent of the entire Tennessee population. Their total population increase (63,919 persons) accounted for 42.6 percent of the entire state population growth from 2010 to 2013. The greatest declines in population during this time period were in Brownsville city (down 270), Pulaski city (down 229), LaFollette city (down 205), Bolivar city (down 176), and Union City (down 146).

Percent Change

There were eight cities that experienced a growth rate greater than 9.0 percent during this time period. They include: Mt. Juliet city (19.2 percent), Collegedale city (15.7 percent), Medina city (13.7 percent), Spring Hill city (12.2 percent), Franklin city (10.2 percent), Kingsport city (9.9 percent), Norris city (9.6 percent), and Millington city (9.1 percent). The greatest percentage declines during this period were in Grand Junction city (down 5.2 percent), Copperhill city (down 4.0 percent), Ducktown city (down 3.6 percent), Bolivar city (down 3.2 percent), and Pulaski city (down 2.9 percent). Grand Junction, Copperhill, and Ducktown each had populations less than 500 persons which accounts, statistically, for the larger percentage declines.
